Hockey — A Crying Bore

• I know that I shall raise the ire of many ardent sports fans but nevertheless I feel that I have the right to speak my piece. I am no doubt speaking for many others too. I feel that there are far too many playoff games for the Stanley Cup carried on tv. Would it not suffice merely to carry the finals alone? Why is a whole month of viewing on the nights concerned ruined by carrying the semi-finals as well? To those not interested this is nothing but a crying bore. I am sure many other people agree with me. After all you must agree that we get a game every Saturday night through the hockey season too. It is a bit greedy when others cannot be considered.

—B.M., Brandon, Man.

A Man Born to be King

• On April 16th. (Good Friday) on tv you had a show on the crucifixion of Jesus called A Man Born to be King. It was excellent and my whole family enjoyed it very much. A few of our neighbors that were over also enjoyed it and we all wish that you could show it once more.

—C.S., Arborg, Man.

Clean Cut Youngsters

• Just felt I had to write to compliment you on the fine program, Music Hop (Hootenanny) from Winnipeg on tv on Wednesday evenings. Some of the talent is outstanding, but it is all thoroughly enjoyable. It is such a pleasure to see clean cut youngsters and decently dressed girls and I'm not a grandmother, I'm only 24 myself. . . .

The sets are simple but attractive and you have only one boy who needs to have a haircut but he is talented enough to make up for it.

—Mrs. R.L., Aylmer, Que.

Who Could Ask for Anything More?

• Your programs after midnight seem to have been very much more acceptable of late. I am a frequent listener and have had much more satisfaction from them than during the summer months. A good musical program is a matter of good taste. One could not ask for anything more. At the moment a beautiful violin solo is being played.

—N.K., Winnipeg

A Staid Acceptance

• I feel that I must write and thank CBC for the wonderful production of Let Me Count the Ways presented on Festival on April 21st. James Daly and Teresa Wright gave outstanding performances in a story that came very close to the interpretation of real and romantic love. Unfortunately many married couples over 40 today seem to relapse into a staid acceptance of each other, and I think that the play made its point by suggesting that these couples should really take the trouble to get to know each other better. Thank you CBC for providing a subtle answer to one of today's most prevalent problems.

—Mrs. J.P., Vancouver

THE THEME OF THE 1964 Reith Lectures, which have become an important annual event in BBC broadcasting widely known beyond Britain, is very apt for the times and of profound significance for the future. Sir Leon Bagrit, Chairman of Elliott Automation Limited, will speak on "The Age of Automation" — the nature and possibilities of systems of computerized automation and the implications he foresees in industrial, economic, political, educational and social aspects of society. He will develop his ideas in the course of six lectures to be broadcast over CBC radio beginning on May 17th. (Beginning May 23rd on CBR.)

In his view, it would be difficult to exaggerate the importance of automation—or cybernetics, to use the more comprehensive term for automatic control, which may extend far beyond the use of machines on routine tasks formerly done by men, and effect profound changes in man's activities.

Sir Leon believes that the influence of the intelligent, able and appropriately educated will increase in our developing society; that "built-in" resistance to automation will inevitably be overcome; and that automation should be the servant and not the master of man. In short, that full humanism can come into its own only by the reduction of drudgery and unnecessary toil.

Sir Leon Bagrit, married, with two daughters, is a man of wide interests. He is a member of the Council of Britain's Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, a Director of the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, and a past member of the Council of the Royal College of Art. His favorite relaxations are music and the visual arts—especially sculpture.

ANOTHER SIDE OF YOUNG, an hour-long variety show featuring a number of young performers new or relatively new to Canadian television, will be taped on location around Toronto and in CBC studios during July by Country Hoedown producer Dave Thomas. It'll be seen on next fall's Show of the Week. In music and dancing, it will show youngsters involved in summertime jobs.

CBC MOSCOW CORRESPONDENT David Levy is preparing a special one-hour report on the Soviet capital, to be seen later this season on CBC Newsmagazine. Included in the report will be highlights of this year's May Day celebrations.

DON FRANCKS will be the guest star on the final Wayne and Shuster Hour of this season, to be seen on CBC tv's Show of the Week in May. This will be Francks' first appearance as a performer on Canadian television (he was recently a challenger on Front Page Challenge) since his Broadway debut in the ill-fated musical, Kelly. He'll sing a number from The Fantasticks, work with Don Gillies and Carlu Carter in a comic dance-mime, and play a slave auctioneer in the show's principal sketch—The Americanization of Scheherazade, or, A Hard Day's Arabian Night.

JOHN DRAINIE, co-host of CBC tv's This Hour Has Seven Days, will be performing at Charlotte-town's Confederation Theatre this summer. In a show called Laugh with Leacock, Drainie will portray the character of Stephen Leacock, a role he has played many times on CBC radio and television.

On Our Cover . . .

FOUR VIEWS of contemporary Japan, slightly off the beaten track, will be seen on CBC tv each Sunday during the remainder of May and the first week of June. The title of these four programs Japanese Jaunt, gives some indication of their light-hearted spirit. They also serve to introduce a new personality to Canadian audiences, Johnny Morris. Well known in Britain for his whimsical "jaunts," Johnny Morris looks for the humorous and the unusual in the places he visits. In Japan, for instance, he calls at a farm where cows are fed beer and given massages (to produce tender filets); goes to an oceanarium where a chimpanzee feeds whales and dolphins; and, like James Bond, meets the girl divers of the island of Ise, where pearls are the catch.

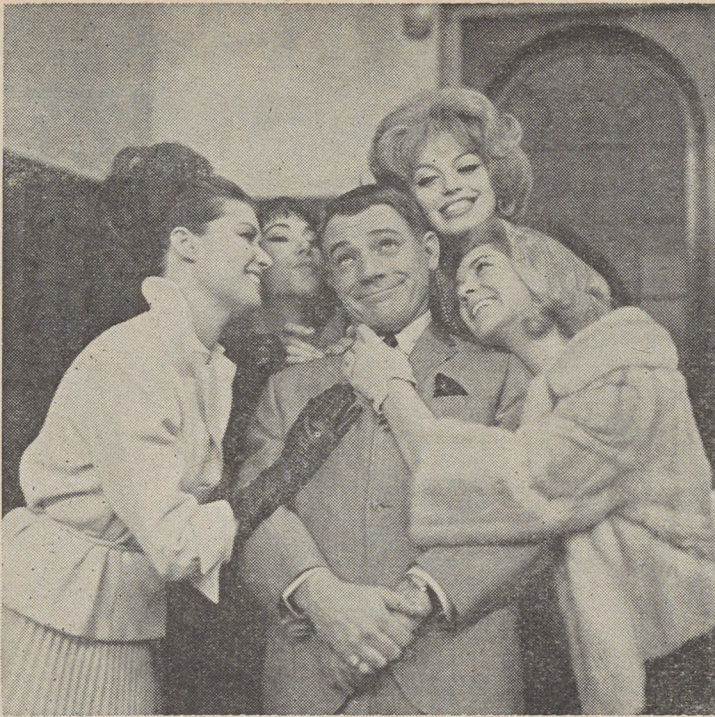

Japanese Jaunt will be telecast Sundays, May 16th, 23rd, 30th, and June 6th, at 4:00 p.m. On the first program (May 16th) Johnny tours Tokyo, visiting a fish market and a fairground.

Don Francks to appear on the last Wayne and Shuster Hour of the season.

SHOW OF THE WEEK

Billy Van as a "Ladies Man"

Billy Van surrounded by, clockwise, Shirley Harmer, June Sampson, Sandra O'Neill and Jean Christopher.

SHOW OF THE WEEK on television this Monday (May 17th at 8:00 p.m.) is a comedy with music entitled Ladies' Man. Shirley Harmer, Pat Galloway, Malka Himel, Sandra O'Neill, June Sampson, and Jean Christopher are some of the ladies, and Billy Van Evera the man: Reginald Bentley, III.

Joining in the fun as the bumbling Reggie sets off in search of a wife are Al Bertram, Jack Duffy, Ivor Barry, and Jack Northmore. Reggie stands to inherit the presidency of the vast industrial — financial complex, Bentley Incorporated—but only if he marries. Looking for the right girl, Reggie becomes involved in a beauty contest, an air hostess training school, a hospital full of nubile nurses, and the Russian delegation to the UN. All of which is just by way of providing Billy Van and the girls with a background for specially written musical numbers like You Gotta Have a Special Talent, sung by the girls; Sleep Tight, sung by Billy Van; We're Going to Bury America, sung by Jack Duffy, Al Bertram, Ivor Barry, and Jack Northmore; Russian Love Song, sung by Malka Himel; and Arabian Dance, an orchestral number.

Ladies' Man is written by Bernard Rothman, Rich Eustis,

Because each issue of the CBC Times must be mailed so far in advance of the program week covered in it, some changes in scheduling and in program content are inevitable. These are noted below.

GREAT MOVIES:

THE WAGES OF FEAR

Shock, Surprise and Revulsion

LONG BEFORE Truffaut, Resnais, Vadim, and the New Wave there were Clair, Cocteau, Renoir, Vigo, and Clouzot. In the French cinema of the '30s, '40s, and '50s, these were the directors whose films were making the kind of impact on the international scene that the New Wave makes in the '60s. Henri-Georges Clouzot is perhaps best known outside France for two dramas that easily surmounted national cultural and language barriers to appeal to audiences everywhere — Salaire de la Peur in 1953 and Les Diaboliques in 1955. While the plots of these films are not at all similar, each, in the words of cinema historian Arthur Knight, “reveals that, fundamentally, Clouzot’s mastery lies in exploiting the basest instincts and most sordid elements to produce his brilliantly cinematic effects of shock, surprise and revulsion.”

Shock, surprise, and revulsion abound in both films, but, whereas Les Diaboliques was strictly a horror film about a murder, Salaire de la Peur (The Wages of Fear) turns on other facets of the human condition — greed, despair, the struggle against odds, victory and defeat.

The Wages of Fear follows two parallel lines in its narrative: a contest of strength between Jo (Charles Vanel) and Mario (Yves Montand); and a gamble with fate by four men chancing their lives against a couple of thousand dollars. Jo and Mario, Luigi (Folco Lulli) and Bimba (Peter Van Eyck) are the principal characters among a group of outcasts living in a poverty ridden village in Central America. Everyone wants to get away but none can afford a seat on the daily flight out. Jo, newly arrived, sets out to establish himself as the leader but in a showdown proves to be a fraud, a derelict like all the rest.

Yves Montand (below) stars in this gripping story of four men and their gamble with fate.

Jack Shadbolt.

Two Canadian Painters on Telescope and Show on Shows This Week

Jean-Paul Riopelle.

WHEN IT WAS announced that Edmonton's new International Airport was to be decorated with a mural commemorating the part played by bush pilots in the history of aviation in the North, many Edmontonians were expecting lots of those old shoulder-wing monoplanes swooping over Indian reservations, ski-ing on frozen lakes with waving Eskimos nearby, and roaring between mountain peaks off into the wild blue yonder of the land of the midnight sun. What Edmontonians got was an abstract painting by Jack Shadbolt that incensed rather than merely disappointed them.

Letters were written to Edmonton papers and questions were asked in the Senate by Senator Donald Cameron, who lives in Edmonton and has been a director of the Banff School of Fine Arts since 1936. A grave mistake had been made, said Senator Cameron. "Disgusting," "this so-called mural," said the letter-writers. Finally the artist himself joined the fray, putting pen to paper to explain to readers of the Edmonton Journal: "I had to boil down each element into a configuration which would be suggestive only so as to stir the imagination and memory rather than to convey a literal image, for this was to be an emblem. By this process the mural became abstract and contemporary and, I hope, worthy of its evocative function and the dimension of its setting."

Shadbolt didn't just dash off the controversial mural with one hand while doodling with the other, as some people thought. A lot of work, long hours of research that included flights to the North, and much experimentation went into the final painting. The artist explains his point of view and working methods on this week's edition of Show on Shows (Sunday, May 16th at 5:00 p.m., when he will be interviewed at his home in Vancouver by freelance broadcaster J. J. McCall.

Jack Shadbolt teaches at the Vancouver School of Art, where he is Head of the Painting Department. His wife Dora is Curator of the Vancouver Art Gallery. Collections in which Shadbolt is represented include: the National Gallery of Canada; the Montreal Museum; Toronto, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Victoria, and Fredericton galleries; the University of British Columbia; the University of Victoria; and Seattle, Portland, and Brooklyn museums.

Like Shadbolt, French-Canadian painter Jean-Paul Riopelle

is also represented at a major Canadian Air Terminal with a mural. To some eyes, the Riopelle mural at Toronto's new airport is every bit as much an "abstract" as Shadbolt's. But Riopelle, according to Riopelle, is not a painter of abstracts. "Abstraction means to come from, to be abstracted or extracted from the mind," he says. "But the mind always has its concrete references. I still regard my work as figurative. How can you look at something which is not figurative?"

Riopelle has been an expatriate from his native Quebec for nearly 20 years, but returns to Canada occasionally for exhibitions. He now lives and works in France, at Vanves, a suburb of Paris. At 42, he is at the very height of his powers, and when the mood is on him he paints in a frenzy. When he is not painting he is inclined to live dangerously. Friends and acquaintances, critics and connoisseurs equate his work with this element of danger. He owns several high-powered cars and an eight-metre racing sloop that previous owners regarded as too fast and too dangerous for sailing. Riopelle likes it that way and has taken it out in force eight gales. As to his driving

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW:

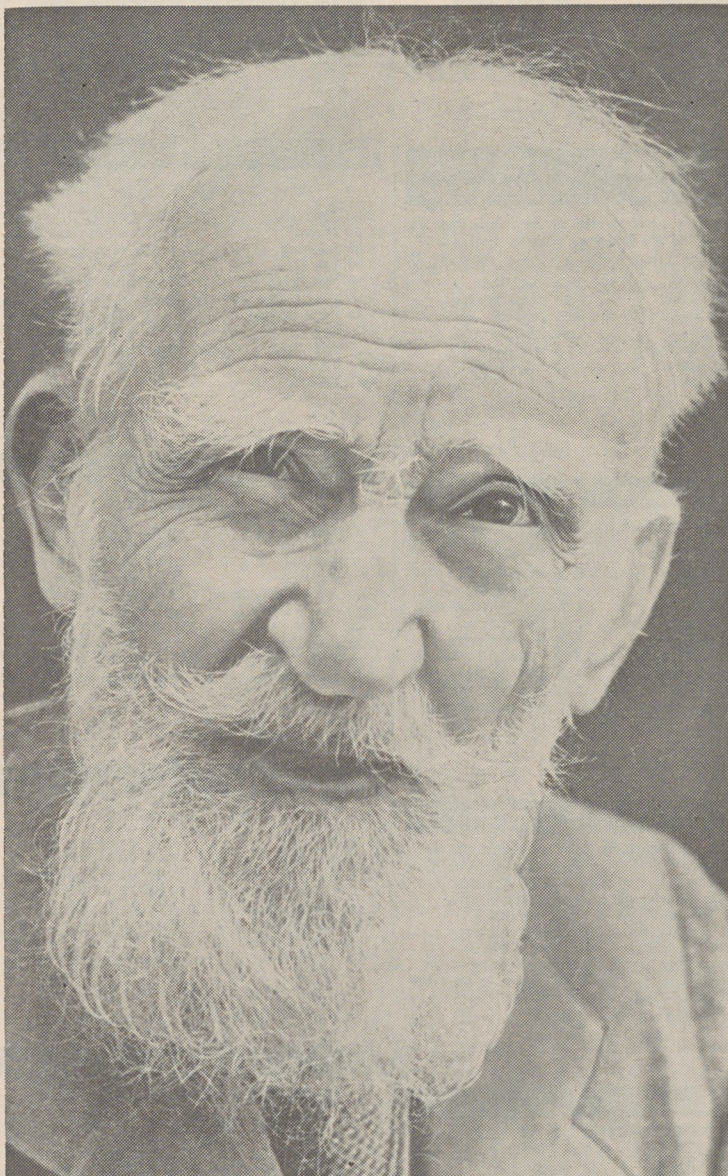

Who the Devil Was He?

A special television program Wednesday examines this enigmatic, dynamic Irish minstrel of genius and wit.

SOMEONE ONCE ASKED George Bernard Shaw to name the greatest character he ever created. He replied pertly: "G.B.S.!" And one can imagine his lean, Norfolk-jacketed shoulders shaking with chortles and his pale blue eyes twinkling merrily under Mephistophelian eyebrows as he laughed harder at himself than anyone else present. But behind his ready wit and surface vanity was a fierce chord of anguish about man's blindness to the social ills of the world, a concern not always recognized by those who rushed to criticize his impertinences. And behind his carefully fostered public image of G.B.S.—an infuriatingly opinionated, sometimes silly arch-crank, a flippant jester addicted to new-fangledness, a perverse skin-flint, an impudent, prejudiced hoodwinker and exposé of sham — was a sweet, prim, gentle, modest, exceedingly kind and noble Victorian who was greatly loved by everyone who came to know him well.

Not too many had that privilege, for he was always an outsider who found nearly all he wanted in his own mind, although he had a deep love of people. His shyness gave him the opportunity of observing them objectively—from the rim of the room, so to speak — and

Major League Championship Baseball

Los Angeles Angels visit Chicago to play the Chicago White Sox.

Countrytime

A visit to the Dixon family of Clyde River, P.E.I., one of the island's centennial farms, which has been in the same family name for more than 100 years. Today there are three generations of Dixon's living on Bannockburn Farm. Host Chuck Dumbrell talks with them about their beef operation, livestock management in general, their participation in 4-H and community life and the effect of the spring season on the farm and the community which surrounds it. Mrs. Margaret Dixon, the grandmother, tells about her interesting hobby of keeping a daily diary on the activities and the people of the farm. The diary is published daily in the Charlottetown Guardian and is read by hundreds of Maritimers every day.

Roy Petty Show

The second of an eight-week series which presents a portrait of vocalist Roy Petty. Music is by the Bob Jackson Quartet: Bob Jackson on bass; Bob Erlandson on piano; Del Wagner on drums; and Lenny Breaux on guitar. Produced and directed by Don S. Williams. Selections:

A Hard Day's Night
She Loves You
Try to Remember
They Call the Wind Maria
All My Lovin'

Beverly Hillbillies

The Clampetts once again jam their well-intentioned but crude hospitality down the throats of oil man John Brewster and his cultured bride, Edythe, who feels forced to accept it.

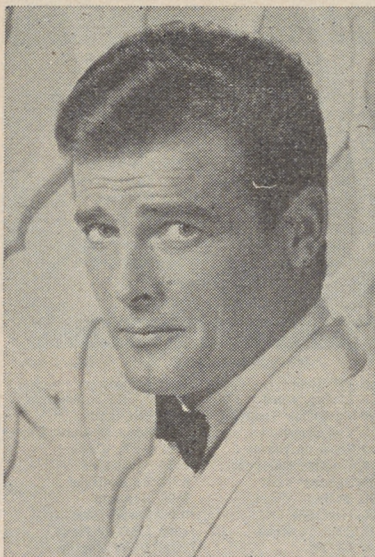

The Saint

Simon becomes involved with an irate father, two beautiful women and an underworld gangster in his search for clues to a murder.

Great Movies

Wages of Fear. Starring Yves Montand, Charles Vanel, Vera Clouzot, Folco Lulli, Peter Van Eyck and William Tubbs.

Las Piedras is an insect-infested, poverty-ridden Central American hell-hole. The few white men there are outcasts from life and long only for the money to escape. The local manager of the oil refinery calls for volunteers for a very dangerous but well paid mission. A truck filled with nitro-glycerin must be sent over virtually impassable ground to extinguish an oil well fire. Whoever can get the cargo through gets $2,000. Four men volunteer knowing that they will probably never return but willing to take the desperate chance for the wages of freedom.

Roger Moore, as the debonair and crafty "Saint," has both gangsters and beautiful women bowing to his every command each Saturday night on the CBC tv network.

Juliette

Honky-tonk piano player Alex Read makes a guest appearance on the show this week.

and Al Rogers (who also wrote an earlier Show of the Week musical entitled No Three People), with musical direction by Jerry Toth. The production is staged by Alan Lund against sets by Jim Jones, with costuming by Thelma Timmins. Producer Norman Sedawie has worked with this production team on other Show of the Week musicals, and they will be together again on a forthcoming musical-comedy Finale (to be telecast later in the season on Show of the Week).

TWO CANADIAN PAINTERS

and his painting, Pierre Schneider, art critic for the French paper L'Express, says: "You know, we call motoring in French moteur explosion. Riopelle is like that. He explodes when he's driving and painting. There is such intensity in his life and his work," Riopelle sums it up with: "When I feel hesitant I don't paint. When I paint I don't feel hesitant."

Whether he works or not, he makes it his habit to go to the studio every day, and—of course—to the bistro. The bistro is as much a part of Riopelle's life as racing and painting. His favorite bistro is right beside a railroad track that shudders under the roar of passing express trains, echoing the thunder of his canvases.

Riopelle in Paris—in his studio, in the bistros, aboard his sloop—is visited this week on CBC tv's Telescope (Friday, May 21st at 9:30), in a film directed and produced by Peter Kelly. Critic Pierre Schneider comments on the artist's life and personality related to his paintings. This edition of Telescope was filmed by Charles Stewart and edited by Noel Dodds. The program was researched by Adrienne Hunter and Cynthia Scott. Executive producer for Telescope is Thom Benson. Assistant producer is George Ronald. Fletcher Markle, host for the series, introduces the program.

Program Notes

MAY 16th

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and add'l program information

CBXT—Bold Journey

Tarahumara Trail. Explorer Romain Willhelsen searches for traces of the lost conquistadors in the Sierra Madre Mountains.

CBXT—Men in Crisis

Grant versus Lee: The Civil War. The four-year struggle of a nation to remain united is reviewed from the viewpoints of two of its major participants, General Robert E. Lee who commanded the out-numbered Confederate Army of the South, and General Ulysses S. Grant who led the strong Federal forces of the North. Narrated by Edmund O'Brien.

CBXT—Reach for the Top

This week Jasper Place Separate High School versus Salisbury High School. Moderator is Colin McLean. Producer, Don MacRae.

Country Calendar

A visit to the sire indexing station at Douglas, Man.

Valiant Years

D-Day—Churchill witnesses the invasion of Normandy.

Heritage

The story of the work of the Anglican Church in a typical back country Punjabi village in India.

20/20

Diary of an Air Transport. The second of a two-part program which tells the story of the men who fly the RCAF's Air Transport Command.

Japanese Jaunt

The first of a four-part BBC produced series which this week looks at Tokyo. A visit is paid to its huge fish market and to a temple and a shrine where a wedding group is assembling to be photographed. Then on to a fairground and a look at some of the kimonos in the Tokyo stores. Also seen are some of the millions of Japanese who visit the city each year to see the wall around the Emperor's palace. (See cover).

Wild Kingdom

Marlin Perkins and Jim Fowler visit Africa and explore its vast grasslands, rivers and forests. (See page 35.)

Show on Shows

Vancouver painter Jack Shadbolt is interviewed at his home by broadcaster J. J. McCall. (See page 6.)

May 15th - 21st

The young and versatile actress, Patty Duke, appears as look-a-like cousins in her situation comedy series televised each Sunday evening.

Stingray

Marina, the beautiful but silent girl from an underwater world who is now a member of the world aquanaut security patrol is suspected of an attempt on the life of Atlanta, daughter of the Marineville commander, Sam Shore.

Some of Those Days

Salutes the Broadway of the 1940's. This was a decade which produced such smash hits as Oklahoma, South Pacific, Annie Get Your Gun, Pal Joey, Kiss Me Kate and Brigadoon. Show features songs from these and other Broadway hits. Stars Roma Hearn, Barney Potts, Pat Morgan and Bob Stone.

Patty Duke

Patty bets her father an extra two weeks allowance that she can go 72 hours without saying a word. She soon discovers, however, that not being able to communicate verbally has its shortcomings, especially with Richard and in school.

Ed Sullivan

Ed's guests include: England's recording star Petula Clark; Rudolf Nureyev and Margot Fonteyn, stars of the Royal Ballet; comedian Alan King; and the Beach Boys, vocal and instrumental quintet.

Bonanza

Rumors of romance flood Virginia City when Ben Cartwright goes to a great deal of trouble to find an old flame.

This Hour Has Seven Days

The last instalment of the series for this season presents a documentary film entitled Running Away Backwards.

HERITAGE visits PUNJAB

An intimate glimpse of the Anglican Church of Canada's work in India

EIGHTY PER CENT of India's 480 millions live in dusty, mud-hut villages such as Dyall, in the northern Punjab. A film of life in Dyall, blending pathos, humor, and scenes of Canadian volunteers working among the Indians, will be shown on CBC tv's Heritage on Sunday, May 16th, at 3:00 p.m. The film is remarkable not only for its unusually intimate glimpse of how the Anglican Church of Canada is trying to help the Indians through education, health services, agricultural and trade training, and Christian teaching, but also for the fact that Fred Wooding, who shot it, had never before held a movie camera in his hand.

As the Church's supervisor of information, he accompanied the Canadian Primate, the Most Reverend Howard H. Clark, on a tour of India and Pakistan last fall, during which the film was made. It includes scenes at an outdoor celebration of the Eucharist, in which a woman is seen putting an egg on the collection plate, and other footage illustrating the great dignity of the villagers. Production by Mel Turner.

Hope for escape from their wretched existence comes when an oil well explodes and the refinery offers $2,000 each to four men willing to drive two trucks, loaded with nitro-glycerine, 500 kilometres over dangerous roads. The nitro-glycerine will snuff out the blazing oil well, but in tropical heat on rutted mountain roads it can also annihilate careless or foolhardy drivers. All four men need the money, but Jo needs something more — the credentials of courage.

World of Nature

Different kinds of birds have different kinds of standards when it comes to building nests. Robins and peewees, for instance, are extremely neat while eagles and herons haven't the least concern for tidiness. The program studies these and other birds during their nesting periods.

Music Hop

Let's Go. Guest singers this week are Gillian Russell, Mike Campbell, Howie Vickers and Tom Northcott. Music by the Classics. Co-hosts are Red Robinson and Fred Latremouille.

CBXT—Canvas Holiday

Glenn Bjarnason and guest Frank Pickering with handy tips on cooking equipment for campers. Ed Bryant, director of the Alberta government travel bureau, points out areas in Saskatchewan and British Columbia that make good camping sites. Host is Garnet Anthony. Producer, Dave Smiley.

Show of the Week

Ladies Man. Starring Billy Van and a group of gorgeous girls, including Shirley Harmer, Pat Galloway, Malka Himel, Sandra O'Neill, June Sampson and Jean Christopher. Also features Al Bertram, Jack Duffy, Jack Northmore and Ivor Barry.

Reginald Bentley has been named president of the vast industrial and financial complex, Bentley, Inc., but there is a catch; the company charter requires that the president must be married, so Reggie must find a bride within one month. This is a problem for him, since his life so far has been dedicated to business. (Even as a child my favorite nursery rhyme was Hickory, Dickory, Dock, Three Shares of Common stock). Reggie's bumbling search for a wife leads him into all kinds of embarrassing situations, and he even manages to get the United Nations in a scramble.

Healthier, Wealthier and Wiser?

The third of four special programs designed to acquaint the public with the issues involved in making health services available to everyone. Host for the series is Paul Fox, professor

TAKE THIRTY:

Examines new methods of teaching mathematics and probes into the problems faced by an alcoholic's family

COMPUTERS AND OTHER examples of advanced technology necessitate an entirely new approach to numbers. The kind of mind required by this modern development puts greater emphasis on learning and discovery in mathematics than on the "little red schoolhouse" system of learning by rote and by rule. But it has been found that advanced concepts of computer mathematics can be presented simply to very young students, even as early as the Grade Two level, and teachers are endeavoring to fall in with the new trend. Meanwhile, across the country, bewildered parents who find they can't help their children with their arithmetic homework any more, are attending Home and School meetings to learn why there is a need for a new approach to arithmetic, and what the "new math" is all about.

On Wednesday, May 19th, at 3:30 p.m., CBC tv's Take Thirty will try to clarify some of the confusion about the "new math" in the of political economy, University of Toronto. Program organizer is Christina McDougall. Script by Warner Troyer. Produced by Dennis Spence. In producing this series the CBC is working in co-operation with the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs and the Canadian Association for Adult Education.

Today, The Society. A look at its growing complexity; how the health professions are coping with the increased pressure of scientific and technological progress within these professions.

CBXT—University Series

A sociological look at what the health requirements are for our industrial and technological society. Producer, Peter Kappela.

Canadian School Telecasts

Concepts of History. Part 2. What is Magna Carta? The origin and importance of the great charter is discussed. In 1215 the charter was intended to limit the power of the King and to make the King rule in accordance with the laws and customs of England. The point particularly emphasized is that the charter was an agreement between King John and the barons.

CBXT—Sergeant Bilko

While conducting a uranium hunt on Fort Baxter, Bilko makes a strike directly beneath Col. Hall's living room.

CBXT—The Millionaire

Needing cash with which to buy a fighter's contract, a fight manager is presented with a windfall.

Moment of Truth

Bob and Nancy Wallace entertain the Wingates at dinner. Monique, slightly inebriated, suggests they all go to the Three Aces, a roadhouse gambling establishment beyond the city limits.

Take Thirty

Two young girls whose fathers were alcoholics discuss how it affected their lives and how they found help and understanding.

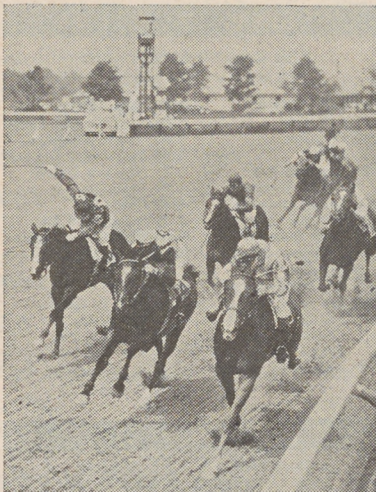

Fireball XL-5

Steve Zodiac, acting as an ambassador, is given the task of bringing the king of Platinum planet safely to earth to sign trade agreements. The king's enemies, however, know of the mission and try to destroy the king and Zodiac.

Music Hop

Jeunesse Oblige. Music and song from Montreal with host Pierre La-

WOODY'S WISH

A one-hour special film on horse racing in Canada

IT WAS GETTING LATE, but nobody seemed to mind. Besides, Old Jack Smith had the floor. Old Jack, or "Chattahoochee", had been around race-tracks for 40 years, and he had the respect of the horsemen who surrounded him in the smoke-filled tack room.

"Did you ever know of the love that can exist between a horse and a man?" Maybe not, but you wouldn't say so. The other horsemen lowered their eyes, because the old trainer was in trouble. He couldn't fight back the tears, nor swallow the lump that had suddenly risen in his throat.

Then he won out, and said proudly, "Well, I won nine in a row with a horse called Chattahoochee, the first horse I ever had." Nine races in a row. It didn't matter how many times he said that; you were always impressed. Everyone nodded approval, and grinned a little. They'd heard it all before. In fact, Old Jack had told about Chattahoochee so often that the other horsemen had nicknamed him after his horse. But they understood. These were the men whose futures depended on the horses they raced. They were men who race horses every year on Canada's "Prairie Circuit" four half-mile tracks at Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, and Saskatoon.

Ruefully called "bull-rings" by the riders who risk their necks on them, these tracks bear little resemblance to the huge, lush establishments in the East—the Woodbines and Fort Eries. There are no Northern Dancers or George Royals on this circuit, but there are many horses whose names are fondly remembered: Joey, Help Yourself, Pagan Star, Beau Orage.

Tony Ziegler's horse, Woody's Wish, will always be remembered by some. Raised at Ziegler's farm near Edmonton, Woody is the type of horse that's needed to keep racing going in Western Canada. He never won any Stakes or broke any track records, but he did win.

And that's what racing's all londe. Special guests are Ginette Ravel, Charles Gauthier, Gil Alain and Les Tetes blanches.

CBXT—Robin Hood

Richard Greene stars as outlaw Robin Hood, who with his band of merry men protect the poor against the wicked Prince John.

CBXT—Addams Family

Knocked on the head by his own Indian clubs, Gomez loses his memory, and fails to recognize his wife Morticia.

CBWT—Gilligan's Island

The castaways' supply hut is burglarized, the greatest loss being the flare gun.

Danny Kaye

Danny's guests are singer Pearl Bailey and comedian Art Carney.

Sports Special—Horse Racing

Woody's Wish. A one-hour film about racing on the old Prairie racing circuit. It follows a horse called Woody's Wish and the people connected with it until it proves itself to be worthwhile and is finally shipped to Toronto to race at Woodbine. Some of the tracks visited are Victoria Park in Calgary and Northland Park in Edmonton.

Festival

Bernard Shaw: Who the Devil Was He? A film portrait of George Bernard Shaw, author of many plays, and the minstrel boy who went from Ireland to the literary wars in bitter obscurity for 40 years, and who then lived another 50 years as the Nobel prize winning sage of Ayot St. Lawrence. This is a portrait of the man of genius and wit and tells of his crusading spirit and his struggle to rise from his devil of a childhood to his ultimate fame as a playwright and Fabian idealist. Tells of his moral passion and his magnanimous concern for the human race. Script devised and narrated by Lister Sinclair. Shaw's own words spoken by Barry Morse. Produced and directed by Vincent Tovell.

NFB Presents

You Don't Back Down. This NFB production offers a timely glimpse of dedicated Canadians serving as members of the Canadian University Service Overseas. For this report NFB film director Don Owen travelled to a remote village in eastern Nigeria where CUSO members Dr. Alex McMahon and his wife are stationed. This young Toronto couple are part of a force of some 200 Canadians serving in various parts of the world.

Program Notes

MAY 20th

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and add'l program information

Canadian School Telecasts

People of Many Lands. Summer in Iceland. Shows the country's great variety of natural scenery, also farm life both in the southern and northern parts of the island and some aspects of the fishing industry. Shows the ways in which school children help the countrymen in this sparsely populated land during their long summer holidays.

Friendly Giant

Friendly tells Rusty about a fierce farm dog that was trying to scare a cow.

Butternut Square

Bob Jeffrey sings some songs about things found in magazines. Sandy shows an old magazine, then tells a story about it.

CBWT—Fury

Loco weed threatens to kill Fury and the rest of Jim's stock.

CBXT—Britain on Parade

1. Alexander Fleming and the discovery of penicillin.
2. The personal story of a typical veterinary surgeon and the background of his world.

Moment of Truth

Gil Bennett calls Lila and arranges an appointment to further discuss the problem with her friend's daughter.

Take Thirty

The second of three programs on the drug explosion and the use of drugs in our daily lives.

Music Hop

This week's guest performers are singers Diane Brooks, Bobby Raye and Pierre Lalonde, host of the Montreal

Each Thursday on "The Defenders" Lawrence and Kenneth Preston take on what are sometimes unusual cases in their quest for just interpretation of the law.

edition of Music Hop's Jeunesse Oblige.

Gomer Pyle, USMC

Gomer gets his first liberty and Sgt. Carter convinces him that it is a Marine tradition to steal a kiss from Hannah, a pretty saloon owner, who is quite adept at judo. What he doesn't tell him is that every Marine who has ever tried usually lands up flat on his back.

The Serial

Cariboo Country — Morton and the Slicks. Morton Dillonbeigh has decided to sell his ranch and move down into the milk cow country in the Fraser Valley where the meat is sold in cellophane bags. At a celebration of his sale Morton decides to have some fun by switching the babies of the celebrants which have been parked in the back room. His prank has unexpected consequences. Slicks are yearling calves that haven't been branded, and of course, babies in an analogous situation.

Cast: Buck Kindt as Morton; Rae Brown as Mrs. Dillonbeigh; and Walter Marsh as Ken Larsen.

The Rogues

Timmy and Marcel move into the studio of a murdered artist friend to find out who did it and why. Starring Charles Boyer and Robert Coote.

minds of parents of young school children. Appearing on the program will be Paul B. McKenzie, principal of Martingrove Gardens School in Etobicoke, a Toronto suburb. He is author of two books on spelling and arithmetic being used in Ontario schools, is chairman of the primary arithmetic course in Etobicoke, and has been trying out the "new math" in his own school. In Ontario "new math" really means just a new approach to arithmetic, and at the moment is in transition. There are many "new math" courses across the country — the most widely used being the Cleveland course. Paul McKenzie will demonstrate the new approach to math with some of his Grade Four students.

On Monday and Tuesday, May 17th and 18th, Take Thirty will present a two-part program on The Alcoholic's Family. There are about 250,000 alcoholics in this country, and if you multiply them by two or three (considering that a wife or husband and children are deeply affected by the alcoholic's condition), you find that enormous numbers of people struggle and suffer because of alcoholism.

Margaret Norquay, who has been talking to alcoholics' families, brings viewers a heart-breaking and at the same time heartening insight into the lives of those who live with an alcoholic. Although growing numbers of alcoholics are women, she talked only to families in which the father had a drinking problem.

In the first program the wives of these men discuss their lives, how the problem started and when, and how they found guidance in helping their husbands to cope with their struggle to overcome the drinking habit. On Tuesday two teenaged girls, whose fathers were alcoholics, tell what the problem did to their lives and how they found a measure of help and understanding in dealing with it.

In preparing the programs Margaret Norquay had the co-operation of Dr. M. E. W. Gooderham of the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation.

involving their junior chemistry set, and succeed in making Jim and Pete's life unbearable.

CBXT—The Millionaire

A young American wife living with her husband in a desolate Mexican mountain area is given a million-dollar gift. She receives the surprise windfall too late, however, to prevent her husband from taking off on a dangerous plane trip.

Moment of Truth

Monique invites Nancy to the Wingate house and tries to introduce her to the fascination of gambling by explaining a system she has worked out for roulette.

Take Thirty

1. A camera eye tour of Niagara-on-the-Lake.

2. Details on a fashion competition sponsored by the Ontario government in which the fashion designs were based on Canadian paintings. Joan Sutton comments.

Razzle Dazzle

Mr. Sharpy visits the Alley with his latest scheme to make a knuckle full of nickels.

CBXT—Showcase 5

Panelists Brian Andrews, from Edmonton city parks department; Ron Wigmore, assistant manager of the Jubilee auditorium; and June Sheppard, television critic debate the question: Are women second class citizens? Producer, William Burley.

about. It can be many things to many people. Horsemen like Chatahoochee Smith have known it as a way of life. Tony Ziegler takes part in it as a hobby—sometimes an expensive one. The experiences of both men ring true to those who know life on the race-track.

This week, CBC television gives viewers a glimpse of that way of life in a one-hour film entitled Woody's Wish (Tuesday, May 18th, at 10 p.m.). Filmed at race-tracks in Calgary, Edmonton, and Toronto, it was written, researched and co-directed by Michael Magee, produced and co-directed by Richard Knowles, with film editing by Ron Garant and music by Ricky Hyslop.

Country Hoedown

Singer Hazel Walker of Halifax is a guest this week.

The Fugitive

Richard Kimble, working as a bartender, under the alias of Frank Borden, hears a Prof. G. Stanley Lazer tell a group of top attorneys on a tv panel discussion that he could get Richard Kimble off on a new trial because of the flimsy circumstantial evidence. Kimble arranges to meet the lawyer secretly and discuss his claim.

Telescope

Jean-Paul Riopelle is visited in his studio in Paris and on the coast of France where he enjoys his favorite sport, yachting. Art critic Pierre Schneider of L'Express, one of Riopelle's greatest admirers offers an assessment of the French-Canadian painter's work. (See page 6.)

Ben Casey

By staving off death with his skill and the scalpel, Ben Casey enables a young couple to re-examine their marriage and find out their real meaning to each other.

MUSIC in CANADA

A study of Canada's musical Growth

THE HISTORY OF MUSIC in Canada is longer, richer, and infinitely more fascinating than most of us may imagine it to be. It spans more than 350 years—closer to 450, if we include the music performed by Jacques Cartier's men when the intrepid explorer landed in 1534.

The Canadian music historian, Helmut Kallmann, has chronicled this country's musical development in his book, A History of Music in Canada: 1534-1914 (University of Toronto Press, 1960). This week, CBC radio begins a 13-week series of documentary programs, based on that book, depicting the growth of music from the days of Cartier to the present.

The scripts were written and arranged by James Bannerman, in collaboration with Mr. Kallmann. Program organizer is Carl Little, and the producer is James Kent. The project is a joint undertaking of the CBC's English and French networks, and the French-language scripts are being prepared by

The scripts for the new "Music in Canada" series, beginning Sunday evening at 7:30, have been written and arranged by James Bannerman, above.

Andree Desautels (under the title Chronique de la vie musicale au Canada). The programs will be heard on Sunday evenings at 7:30 p.m. on the English network, beginning May 16th; and on Fridays at 9:00 p.m. on the French network, beginning May 21st.

Each program will examine a particular development or era in Canada's musical growth. A great deal of work has been done in locating authentic music, instruments, and documents; and, of course, large amounts of music have had to be sifted and assessed to provide the musical examples that will make up a large propor-

Automation: An Extension of Man. (Please note that the time of 11:30 p.m. for this broadcast, as indicated on the back cover, is incorrect.) For many people automation is a terrifying word. It conjures up visions of tyrannical machines reducing man to the mere status of a pusher of buttons, abolishing the need for human thought or judgment. Sir Leon Bagrit insists that automation is not a Frankenstein but a tool of such immense possibilities that no one can yet see the full extent of what it might

COLAS ET COLINETTE

*Revival of a Canadian Opera—
CBC Sunday Night*

IN 1789, the year the French Revolution began, when Mozart was commissioned to write Così fan tutte, and Alexander Mackenzie was searching for a Northwest Passage, a group of prominent Montreal gentlemen met to consolidate plans for establishing a new Théâtre de Société. Soon thereafter, one of them—a Boucherville merchant and composer named Joseph Quesnel—wrote the dialogue, songs, and music for an opera, Colas et Colinette (or, The Bailiff Duped), which had its première on February 9th, 1790. Thus, the first known performance of a Canadian opera took place just two Tuesdays after the première of Così fan tutte in Vienna.

Colas was revived in Quebec in 1805 and given two performances, the second by popular demand. The text was published in 1808, but, after Quesnel's death the following year, the opera seems to have been forgotten by the public. Two years ago, through the efforts of Canadian music historian Helmut Kallmann, it was revived again and performed in a concert version by Ten Centuries Concerts in Toronto.

A performance of the work will be given on CBC Sunday Night, May 16th, at 9:00 o'clock.

The opera is a light comedy: The village bailiff, a rich old bachelor, is in love with Colinette, an orphan brought up by Monsieur Dolmont, respected seigneur of the parish, but Colinette loves young Colas. The bailiff plots to get Colas sent off to serve in the militia to leave the romantic field clear for himself, but eventually young love triumphs. The cast includes baritone Georges Coulombe as Dolmont, baritone Benoit Dufour as the bailiff, soprano Claire Gagnon achieve for mankind. Just as man extends his eyes through radar, his tongue and ears through telecommunications, and his muscles and body structure through mechanization, through automation he extends and integrates all the sensing, thinking and decision making elements. Automation is brought to full fruition only by a thorough exploitation of its three major elements: communication, computation and control. In this first lecture Sir Leon makes a distinction between mechanization and automation and explains his preference for the term cybernation because it deals with the theory of communications and control, which is what genuine automation really is.

RALPH CONNOR

A profile of Canada's first best-selling novelist

RALPH CONNOR was this country's first best-selling novelist, a born storyteller who spun 30 tales of rough-and-ready Canada. They were mostly violent, sentimental adventures in the two-fisted west where sin and virtue fought a continuous battle in primitive nature, and the good guys always won. Such books as Black Rock, The Sky Pilot, The Man From Glengarry sold a total of five million copies and made Connor a million dollars — which an unscrupulous lawyer misused, and when the author returned from front-line service overseas in the First World War, he was greeted with the news that his fortune was gone. But, like one of his own heroes, he took the loss with remarkable grace, and continued to turn out his novels. However, his sorrow and bewilderment had taken their toll: his style had lost some of its old vigor and rough good humor. He now set his stories in eastern Canada. The switch of locale from the exciting, roaring world of the new west to the less flamboyant east, and the fact that the post-war public was not as optimistic about the possibility of moral regeneration as his earlier readers had been, contributed to his decline in popularity. But after several literary flops he wrote his best book of all, his autobiography, Postscript to Adventure, completed just before he died in 1937.

He was born Charles William Gordon in a Presbyterian Manse in Glengarry, Ontario, in 1860, the son of a fearsome and fearless Scots clergyman and his wife. After graduating from the University of Toronto and Knox College (the Presbyterian theological seminary on the same campus), Gordon spent a year at Edinburgh University, toured Europe on a bicycle, then went to preach to tough miners, railroaders, cowboys and lumbermen in boozing towns all over the west, rousing them to repent with his burningly eloquent evangelism, then of maddening or refreshing them with his observations. He wasn't always right, but he could be wrong with a flourish.

A documentary portrait of this extraordinary Irish minstrel of genius and wit who spent 40 years fighting poverty and obscurity, and 54 more as the combined sage and enfant terrible of Ayot St. Lawrence, England, will be presented on CBC tv, Wednesday night, May 19th. The program was produced and directed by Vincent Tovell. The narrator is Lister Sinclair, who also devised the script. Shaw's own words are spoken by actor Barry Morse. The film director was James Murray, and Rolph Blakstad was the cameraman.

Devil of A Childhood

Filmed in Dublin, London, and Ayot St. Lawrence, the hour-long program tells the story of Shaw's crusading spirit and struggle to establish himself, from his "devil of a childhood" in Dublin, with its tepid family relationships, to his ultimate fame as a playwright and Fabian idealist. Film sequences, newsreel film clips, and still photographs illustrate passages from Shaw's writings about his life and work, his "moral passion," and his magnanimous concern for the human race. Background music has been chosen from the works of Mozart (Shaw's favorite composer), Wagner, and Beethoven. Off-camera voices are those of Diana Maddox, Alexander Webster, and Gillie Fenwick.

Shaw was born in Dublin on July 26th, 1856, to a dull Irish corn merchant and his wife, a talented singer. The inordinately feeble family relationships in the household encouraged great independence in Barney, the only son, who spent a lot of time wandering around art galleries, going to the theatre, and reading voraciously. He became a clerk, but loathed it, so at 20 forsook Dublin, went to London to live with his mother (who had moved there some time earlier), and decided to become a novelist. For the next nine years, supported by his mother, who taught singing, he turned out five novels, which were rejected by every publisher in the country. It wasn't until he was appointed music critic of The Star that he began to be known, a tall, pallid, shabby firebrand with a flaming red beard who became the most engaging, shrewd and widely knowledgeable music critic of his day. Music seemed to him the most complete of the arts, and he kept on writing about it with wit, point and penetration for 70 years.

It wasn't until he espoused a cause, Socialism, learned to adopt a less formal, more colloquial style ideally suited to expressing his ideas and ideals, began to explore a new medium, playwriting, and loosened the reins on his wit, that his writing took on the zest and power that made him famous. The critics were rough on his first play, but after he had six hits in rapid succession, they did an about-face. By 1899 he had joined the literary immortals, a pinnacle he maintained for half a century, was a leading figure in the Socialist movement, crusading for a better world, and had married a wealthy Fabian. So clear, pure and disarmingly witty was his eloquence that men and women became Socialists in spite of themselves, almost in the same breath that they denounced him as a mountebank, and young people began for the first time in their lives to question some of the stuffy institutions they had been brought up to believe inviolate. Nobody could rust where Shaw was heard.

More Saint Than Sinner

It chagrined him that his plays failed as propaganda but were artistic successes. He wanted his audiences to laugh, but he also wanted them to take him seriously. They never did. He was more saint than sinner, but because he knew the public was more interested in sinners than saints, he determined to get its attention for his causes by creating an image of himself as a cocksure rascal. And it worked.

His good friend, St. John Ervine, recalls that "He was a valiant man, and because he treated us as if we were valiant, too, we felt valiant . . . He was a great laugher, and he laughed with his whole body. He threw his shoulders about while the laughter ran up his long legs and threatened to blow his head off . . . But he was a kindly laugher. There was not a sneer in his whole composition."

Well over six feet in height, with beautiful hands, fiercely tilted chin, and a lilting Irish accent, he moved lightly and gracefully with long strides, and it was a matter of pride with him to look well at all times.

Predilection to Levity

He was a good companion — would often do more for his friends than they would do for themselves — and a good husband. To his wife, with whom he shared a warm affection and deep respect for many decades, he was invariably courteous in an old-fashioned way, and never broke a single promise he ever made her.

He was a winsome man, but his predilection to levity, to which he often resorted to cover up his deep feelings, annoyed many. "This has prevented me from becoming a really great author," he once lamented. "I have unfortunately this desperate temptation that suddenly comes on me. Just when I am really rising to the height of my power that I may become really tragic and great, some absurd joke occurs and the anti-climax is irresistible." But what if there had been no hilarious pig episode in John Bull's Other Island? It's an intolerable thought.

Right until the end he was as dynamic as ever, full of youthful curiosity and enthusiasm, although he referred to himself sadly as an old bag of bones, and was often intensely lonely and aware of how frail his human contacts had been. When he died at 94, his friend and fellow Irish playwright, Sean O'Casey, summed up the feeling of those who admired him when he wrote: "A wonderful man is Shaw, lord of a century of good deeds and great work. Oh, Bernard Shaw, there can never be a Last Post for you, for what you have written and what you have done sound a Reveille that can never end."

DRAMA THIS WEEK

*Midweek Theatre features play by Winnipeg writer
Mort Forer*

IN THE SWAMPS of the American deep south, in the secret, bushy areas remote from the white patrollers, were the maroons—hidden huddles of huts built by escaped slaves. Two moving stories of one such small place—the Land o' Canaan Maroon, near Baton Rouge in Louisiana, will be presented on CBC radio's Midweek Theatre on Wednesday night, May 19th. Set a century apart, the plays were written by Mort Forer, and will be produced by Gus Kristjanson in the Winnipeg studios.

The first begins on March 2nd, 1861, two days before Abraham Lincoln was sworn in as 16th president of the United States. Near midnight of that day a young Negro slave, raised on a sugarcane plantation, runs off into a nearby swamp, and, travelling north, tries to escape the patrollers in the Land o' Canaan Maroon. The second story begins on March 2nd, 1961, three months after the inauguration of John F. Kennedy, 35th president of the United States. Now the village of Maroon, on a neck of land pointing into the delta swamp, is a cluster of board shacks and log cabins sheltering a Negro community of casual laborers from the cane and rice plantations—men and women who, in the greatest age of miracles the world has ever known, are still fighting for the basic rights of human dignity. Both stories are laced with humor, tragedy, and shining hope.

Author Mort Forer is a vigorous Canadian-by-adoption who was born in New York, and left New York University at 18 to volunteer in the Canadian Army during the Second World War. When the war ended he was in Germany, attached to British Field Security as part of a team searching out Nazi war criminals. When he returned to Canada he enrolled at the University of Toronto, where he edited the student newspaper, and met and married Marian Waldman, a young Winnipeg writer who had just made her name with radio plays in the popular Stage series. Following graduation he edited a small Winnipeg weekly, studied for a degree in social work, practiced in the U.S., and then returned to become a social worker in the Manitoba bush. In 1954 the Forers plunged full-time into freelance writing, and since then Mort has sold over 100 plays to the CBC, as well as short stories, talks, musicals, and critical reviews, has steeped himself in the social and economic history of the Canadian prairies, and has won an Ohio Award for his authentic presentations. The Forers now live in a large old house in the centre of Winnipeg, with their three adopted children.

PROFILE OF RALPH CONNOR

and to tears with his sentimental, guitar-accompanied songs. In 1894 he was called to St. Stephen's Church in Winnipeg, where he administered until just before his death.

When he appealed to Presbyterian Church officials in Toronto in 1896 for more funds for western missions, he was asked to write something to illustrate the need, for publication in the church weekly, Westminster. The result, a tale of a missionary's work in a camp of hard-drinking lumberjacks, led to more stories and novels, and made publishing history. Because Gordon felt that some die-hards might not consider fiction a suitable means of expression for a clergyman, he used a pseudonym, culled from the second and third words on a mission board letterhead on his desk: Brit.Can. Nor.-West Mission. His editor, thinking he had made a slip of the pen, amended Cannor to Connor.

A profile of Ralph Connor, prepared by Allan Anderson of Toronto, will be presented on CBC Sunday Night, May 16th.

tion of the program time. Some of the music was uninspired, some mediocre, but a good deal was very good—so good, indeed, that the planners began to wish for more time to play it.

"At first, 13 half-hours sounded like a lot of time," recalls Mr. Kallmann, "but we soon discovered that in that time we could barely scratch the surface . . . We soon agreed not to give a complete history illuminating each phase of every period, but, rather, to select characteristic phases and episodes, touching at least once on all important aspects."

Despite the thoroughness of the research, the series will be far from a dry, pedantic discourse, for Mr. Bannerman has brought a lively, refreshing approach to the subject. "I wanted to make the title Music in Canada mean what it says," he points out. "That's why, in arranging the scripts, I quoted from the letters and diaries and memoirs of many persons of many kinds, to show that music and musicians have always belonged to the country's daily life, and haven't just existed in a separate cultural compartment. And I tried to keep what I wrote myself as short and unpretentious as I could, so the series wouldn't sound like a long-drawn-out lecture."

BOB McMULLIN

From Jazz to Concert

RESERVED FOR MUSIC on Thursday, May 20th, comes from Winnipeg and is sub-titled, Originals by McMullin. The half-hour program will consist entirely of compositions in the jazz and light-concert field by one of Western Canada's best-known composers-arrangers and conductors, Bob McMullin. Bob will lead a 27-piece orchestra and vocalist Aubrey Tadman in up-tempo "swingers," a jazz-waltz, a slow, sentimental ballad, a bright and breezy song, and a light concert suite entitled, Northland Sketches.

The Northland Sketches were written in 1953 while McMullin was living in Edmonton. They contained Bob's musical impressions of the vast, sparsely populated area which lies north and west of that city. The first movement, Northwest Territory, suggests the primitive, rugged beauty of that lonely part of Canada, the struggle of the nomadic Indians and Eskimos to survive in an unfriendly land. The second movement, Nahani, hints at the air of mystery which surrounds the so-called Headless Valley, in the remote region where British Columbia and the Yukon meet. The last movement, Aurora Borealis, is a picture in music of that startling phenomenon of the Northland—the Northern Lights.

Also included in the program will be: Scuba Do, Bob's jazz impression of his favorite sport, scuba-diving; Amanda, a song-tribute to his wife, whose second name he has used for the title; a humorous utilization of numerous rhythmical patterns around one single tune going by the name of Tour de Farce; and a swinging song known as Love Is the Thing.

Bob McMullin is undoubtedly one of the most skilful and imaginative composers in the light-music field in Canada. Among those who know him best the question is often asked whether he is primarily a conductor or a composer.

In a radio and tv world in which the odd and unorthodox is almost the usual thing, his musical career stands out as unusual in the extreme. Except for a year of piano lessons in Raymond, Alberta, he has never had any formal musical training. He has played four instruments professionally: clarinet, saxophone, trumpet, E flat horn, and when necessary, can play drums, vibraphone and harmonica. His compositions range from the lightest of "pop" tunes to the complex and deeply pondered.

Bob McMullin.

Musicians like Bob McMullin, with a natural and instinctive grasp of the medium almost from childhood, occur once in a long time, and tend very quickly to become legends. But Bob is an intensely practical, working musician, with no illusions about his task. He loves music, it is true, but he also finds it hard, exacting work.

Bob began serious work in Calgary, playing clarinet and saxophone and making arrangements for Jerry Fuller's orchestra. From there he moved on to the summer resort at Sylvan Lake, where professional work really set in, with six nights a week dance playing and a concert on Sundays. It meant incessant writing and arranging, in intervals of performance with the band. But it launched Bob on his writing career.

In 1942, Bob joined the RCAF band at No. 3 Manning Depot in Edmonton, and in 1944 he was overseas, leading a group of his own, the Modernaires. They played for troops in England, Belgium, Germany and Holland. June, 1946, saw him back again to Edmonton—the last Canadian Air Force Band to return.

While overseas, Bob had already begun work on his Rocky Mountain Suite, and he completed it soon after his return. It took six months of concentrated work. Sir Ernest MacMillan gave it its premiere performance in March, 1948, with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, and since then it has been performed in Australia and New Zealand and in the United States. The work is in two movements, headed The Swallow's Nest and Pass River. It expresses something of the awe and majesty of the great mountains which Bob has known and loved since childhood.

Back in Edmonton, after the war, he was leader and arranger for a dance band, and subsequently, started working for the CBC. Many CBC engagements followed including: Saludos Amigos, Linger Awhile, Bob McMullin Show, Music by McMullin, Rendezvous with Music, The Music Box, Nice and Easy, The Georges LaFleche Show, Summer Showcase, Quartet for Two, Music Styled By . . ., Reserved for Music, The Trans-Canada Talent Show, as well as arranging and conducting for numerous television shows including Teen Beat, Club 41, Music Break, Time Out for Music, Stage Door, and several television "specials"—Easter Seal and Christmas shows.

McMullin has also been musical director for many stage productions such as the Winnipeg Rainbow Stage presentations of Bells Are Ringing, Plain and Fancy, Pajama Game, Damn Yankees, Kiss Me Kate, West Side Story and South Pacific.

Bob and his wife, Joan, have been married for 22 years and as his copyist she has been a great help and asset to him.

as Colinette, and tenor Jean-Louis Pellerin as Colas. The opera will be conducted by Godfrey Ridout, the well-known composer, conductor, and professor of music at the University of Toronto.

It was Ridout who undertook the restoration of the work. He reconstructed the score from the few surviving instrumental parts, supplied some of his own creative ideas, and (for the radio performance) wrote an overture which adheres faithfully to the style of the opera.

Joseph Quesnel was born in St. Malo, France, in 1749, and, in the course of a naval career, saw many parts of the world before arriving in Canada at the age of 30. At the time, he was captain of a ship carrying provisions and ammunition to the American revolutionaries. Captured by a British ship off Nova Scotia, he was taken to Halifax, and decided to settle down in Canada. He was a man of versatile education, familiar with the classics of French literature, an able actor and violin player, and his contributions to Canadian cultural life embraced the fields of music, literature, and the theatre.

WILD KINGDOM

The Ruler of this Kingdom holds Court to everything from King Cobras to jesting Chimpanzees

Marlin Perkins, director of the St. Louis Zoological Gardens, has achieved his life-long ambition—and still loves it.

The noted naturalist, who started his career in zoology as a laborer at the St. Louis Zoo, is host of Wild Kingdom seen on Sundays at 4:30 on CBC tv. He formerly was host of NBC tv's award-winning Zoo Parade.

Perkins has been a traveller and animal lover since his youth in Carthage, Mo., where he was born March 28th, 1905, and in Pittsburg, Kansas, where he was brought up. As a child, he shunned the usual games familiar to youngsters and roamed the fields near home, ever adding to his collection of reptiles, animals and birds. His father, a Circuit Court judge, had one objection to his son's hobby: the reptiles in the house basement—and their occasional escape—made it difficult to keep a maid.

The story was the same during Perkins' school days. At 14 he went to Wentworth Military Academy, Lexington, Mo., where he kept two black snakes in his closet. When a faculty officer discovered them, Perkins was forced to liberate them in the countryside. Later, at the University of Missouri, where he studied zoology, Perkins encountered more difficulty when he informed his landlady that a king snake had escaped from his room. The snake was never found. Several weeks of tension ensued.

In 1926, Perkins left College for an $18-a-week laborer's job at the St. Louis Zoo, where he advanced to curator of reptiles. In 1938, he became curator of the Buffalo Zoological Gardens, and in 1944 was appointed director of Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago, where he established an international reputation during the next 18 years.

In 1948 Perkins made his first trip to Africa, capturing four young gorillas in French Equatorial Africa. Two of his prize finds, Sinbad and Irving Young, were ready to step in as replacements when the 500-pound Bushman, "star" of the zoo, died in 1951.

In 1960, Perkins headed the zoological section of Sir Edmund Hillary's expedition to investigate the Abominable Snowman in the Himalayas. Evidence was uncovered showing that the foot tracks found in the mountain snow are made by foxes and other animals, and that the tracks of the Yeti, or Abominable Snowman, are caused by a process of ablation whereby the sun melts them into grotesque shapes resembling ape tracks.

Perkins is author of several books, including Zoo Parade, and Mogul Finds a Friend, which was published in 1962. It is the true story of a little elephant that lived in Lincoln Park Zoo.

The famous naturalist accepted directorship of the St. Louis Zoo October 1st, 1962, upon the retirement of George Vierheller—who had hired Perkins as a laborer there in 1926. Perkins' Wild Kingdom series originates from the St. Louis Zoo, where a special animal laboratory and studio were constructed. Perkins and his crews roam the major continents of the world to get exciting stories and color films for the Wild Kingdom shows.

Perkins lives in St. Louis with his wife Carol and her three children by a former marriage. The only animal in the house is a little gray kitten. Perkins has a daughter, Suzanne, a 1957 graduate of the University of Chicago, who is pursuing a theatrical career. Perkins' hobbies are photography, skiing, archaeology and hi-fi music.
